

INSTITUT DE FRANCE
LEFOULON-DELALANDE FOUNDATION

SCIENTIFIC GRAND PRIZE 2020
CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

Created in 2002, the Grand Prize will be given each year to a scientist who has made important contributions to cardiovascular physiology, biology, or medicine. Taken in the widest sense, these fields also include developmental biology, genetics, epidemiology, physiology, as well as clinical biology, imaging techniques, therapeutics, and the pharmacology of the cardiovascular system.

The Lefoulon-Delalande Grand Prize, of 600 000 euros, will be awarded in 2020.
The following conditions will apply:

Submission of the dossiers: the dossier must be mailed electronically as one continuous pdf file to the following electronic address: anne.baechler@institutdefrance.fr

Deadline for the reception of the dossiers: January 10, 2020

Date of award decision: April 6, 2020

Constitution of the dossier:

- A nominating proposal by a distinguished scientist using the official form (downloadable on the website: www.institut-de-france.fr)
- A curriculum vitae (1page)
- A description of the scientific achievements of the candidate focusing especially on those contributions that deserve the Grand Prize (2 pages maximum)
- A list of 10 major publications
- Additional documents will not be taken into consideration

Please note:

1. The Institut de France requires that the dossier be presented in English.
2. A candidacy can only be accepted if:
 - The official nominating form, established by a distinguished scientist, has been duly completed
 - All required documents for establishing a dossier are included
3. A candidacy that was not selected in the previous years can be resubmitted provided that the project is updated.
4. Members of the Institut de France are not eligible.
